The most commonly prescribed anti-anxiety medication for cats is called gabapentin, which is a capsule that is sprinkled onto the cat's food. For dogs, trazodone is a highly effective tablet that is given as a treat. Both of these medications are inexpensive. The doctor will contact you at the number(s) you have provided to inform you of your pet's need for anxiety relief. By acknowledging below, you understand that your pet may require anxiety-reducing medication and agree to appropriate treatment provided by one of the doctors on staff at Del Ray Animal Hospital.
